

The Story Of Jess and Aver: Giving Love A Chance by K. A. Neeson

How many people break up with their boyfriend, not talk for three months, then wake up one day and marry them right off the bat before they officially get back together again? Yes, that's right. Married. Hell, I know it sounds crazy, but the conventional way (getting back together to work things out first) doesn't usually work; we've seen that fail too many times. As nonsensical as it sounds, it could actually work...

Within a short time, frame, I experienced love, loss, reconciliation, and heartbreak. This is the story of my revelation, how I almost single-handedly destroyed the best thing that had ever befallen me, and the incidents and events that followed. My name is Aver, and this is my story.

The Irish Side Of Heaven by K. A. Neeson

Many times, Eilish mentioned to me she would wait for me in her garden with tea. I asked her how she would find me. She said, “Oh, I will know you. I will be on the Irish side of heaven.” I laughed and said, “Where Guinness runs out of the taps.” She laughed her wonderful laugh of hers she exclaimed “We will talk about how the rest of your life turned out, and all about the kids. It will be wonderful I will meet you on The Irish Side of Heaven.”
