The Old Man and The Watch:
Searching For The Long Road Home by Jo Jewell

One small, seemingly insignificant act can change lives forever.....for generations.

For a chosen few, a pocket watch holds mysterious power over new beginnings. The watch-belonging to Morgan's brother and was given to Morgan after his beloved brother's tragic death in a farming accident when they were children.....plays an integral part in the life of the one who holds it.

Kerri Perry survived a car accident, but her childhood sweetheart did not. She has lived her life as a mere existence, for she carries the weight guilt and shame from that fateful night.....that is, until she is bequeathed the pocket watch. She is a loner hiding from the world in her one-bedroom, third-floor apartment until the day a missed phone call changes her life forever.

Kerri returns the stranger's call. Their initial conversation is tense, but the loner and the old man who placed the original call, Morgan, develop an intimate friendship founded on the stories Morgan shares with Kerri about his early life. Once their relationship moves from infrequent phone calls to in-person meetings at Morgan's lavish estate, Kerri learns something that once again changes her life.

Who is next in line to receive the pocket watch.....and what secrets will it reveal?

Review from Deb Rust-February 2019: Deb Rust to Author Jo Jewell Tom thoroughly enjoyed your books that I gave him for Christmas. He finished them long before New Year's Day. He started in and then was enraptured by the trilogy. So much so that I'd told him I was not buying any more books for a year (I was ignored). Thanks for sharing your wonderful talent!!

He has already put his order in for The Glory Plains: The Raising of a Thousand Voices

Thanks! Jo

Review from Pen It! Publications: I thoroughly enjoyed reading this book. The story is fascinating. There is love and hate...good and evil...and twists and turns. Can't wait to read the other books in this series.

Message From The Author: “I call myself a mountain woman. In truth, I was born on the flatlands of Indiana on May 20th, 1955. The world population was 2.780 billion, Eisenhower was President, unemployment was 5.5%, Cher was nine years old on that day, and you could mail a letter for .03 cents. Luckily, the dinosaurs were gone, and fire had been invented by then. I moved to Tennessee to the foot of The Great Smoky Mountains in 1998.

I have been writing since the age of six. I won my first regional poetry contest in second grade. For the past 50+ years, I have written for myself and only a chosen few. Writing to me is as life-sustaining as breathing, as important as a beating heart. I have written for newspapers, had my own local column in the Blount County Voice, shared stories of my life for my friends to make them laugh, sigh, cry, or more importantly, to think. I wrote puppet shows for our mentally handicapped facility, inspirational short stories for church services, and a series of articles that led to testimony before the Maryland State Senate and the creation of the bill: Maryland Task Force for Abused, Abandoned, and Neglected Children. As long as it meant I could write, I wrote. I can't tell you where this passion came from, I can't tell you one incident that caused me to start writing and not stop.

I have no memory of “starting” to write, I just did, and at a very early age. I hope you enjoy reading this story as much as the characters enjoyed telling their stories.”

The Old Man and the Watch: Searching for the Long Road Home by Jo Jewell

There is always a story being whispered in the wind. Last summer, I received a call on my cell phone from an unfamiliar number. I have always feared that someone might be calling for help, (my mind works differently), and so I returned the call to explain they dialed my number by mistake. An older gentleman on the other end was somewhat suspicious at first, but three hours later, we hung up as friends. A very close friendship was born from that wrong number. After hanging up, I asked, "What if?" The Old Man and The Watch was conceived. I hope you enjoy reading this story as much as the characters enjoyed telling their story.

The Good Guardian: The Battle of Grey Island: The Old Man and the Watch Book Two by Jo Jewell

The Good Guardian: The Battle of Grey Island Book II in The Old Man and the Watch Series by Author Jo Jewell, will leave you breathless. Something evil is lurking in the streets of Royal City, South Carolina. A killer is on the loose, snatching people off the streets and ruthlessly murdering them. Bata and his partner, Pete Talley, always seem to be one step behind in a sick game of cat and mouse. Back alleys, smoky bars and the shadows that haunt the night, hold secrets of the underworld. From the streets of Royal City to the Kalahari Desert of South Africa, it is a race against time. When Aliah disappears the night before her high school graduation, the investigation takes a desperate and personal turn. What price will be paid for the safety of the city Bata and Pete love? Will they save the city in time? Will they find Aliah before she becomes another casualty?
