

Small Town Librarian by John Legget Jones

Small Town Librarian: Emma's life had not turned out like she expected. Her father died then her mother got ill and her dreams of college and an exciting life as a writer in New York City evaporated. Forced to take her mother's job as the town librarian and working a second job at a grocery to pay the medical bills, her life was going nowhere. She married a good man then discovered she couldn't have children which added to her despair. Not having the life she wanted and working in a boring job, she felt trapped and hopeless. Then one day, a woman brings her a magical book and Emma's life begins to change.

About The Author: Born on April 12, 1953 in Lepanto, Arkansas, to a farmer and a homemaker, John Legget Jones always wanted to be a baseball player. He pursued that dream until the slow awaking occurred that he was at best an average player. He shifted focus after high school and concentrated on getting an education. He received a degree in Computer Technology from Purdue University and an MBA from Notre Dame. He had a long and successful career as an executive in the information technology field. His passion for the past few years has been writing with several successful books published. John lives on a small farm in Ohio with five horses, two dogs, an old goat, many chickens, a few ducks and many outside cats, actually too many cats, but they are all welcome.
