"The Earth Itself Is Causing Climate Change"

Ten-thousand years ago, scientists tell us that the Sahara Desert had been a natural grassland that supported animal life and human civilization. Exactly what major event had caused the life-thriving African landscape to change from a productive environment to a sand-dune wasteland (without any human industrial smokestacks or automobile carbon emissions ever existing)? The fact is, the Earth itself is causing Climate Change!

Climate change is not a hoax, but it is mostly caused by natural changes in the Earth's geologic development, and not too much affected by the activities of "evil mankind". The advocates of the theory of humans causing climate change tend to "only live in the moment of now", and myopically, do not see the "Big Pattern Picture". Yes, man's recorded history is a mere three-thousand-five-hundred-years-old, but Earth's natural history goes back billions of years. The Climate Change activists (and their agenda) depend largely on erroneous, speculative generalizations, but their arguments are relatively short on specific facts. The more zealous Climate Change proponents believe that mankind is EVIL, and that his (or her) freedoms must be limited, restricted and controlled by UN Global Authoritarianism.

Ever since the Cambrian Era of Earth's history (500 million years ago when animal life emerged from the oceans to the land, even 400 million years before the Jurassic Dinosaurs), there have been five major Ice Ages, several of which lasted millions of years. In that same 500-million-year period, there have been several-hundred mini-Ice Ages, the last one (well-documented) occurring in the early 1700s.

Obviously, Ice Ages (Climate Change) followed by Global Warming (Climate Change) followed by another Ice Age (Climate Change) repeating itself over 300 times in Earth's History is quite remarkable and indisputable. And how incredible! Climate Change happened over 3 hundred times without mankind's industry, cars, fossil fuels, and CO-2 pollution ever being key factors.

The Renaissance Period (1200-1400 A.D.) was a time of global warming that followed hundreds of years of much colder temperatures, which had previously existed during the colder "Dark Ages" in human history. The fantastic Renaissance was actually caused by Global Warming. Because Italy became warmer in the 1200s, Venice soon emerged as an important trade capital, sending its ships out farther to sea to do profitable business. Ideas were soon shared between cultures, because it is always easier to borrow than to invent. It was then easier for Marco Polo to journey to China and take back to Italy wonderful new ideas like paper money, gunpowder, and noodles (spaghetti), all thanks to "Natural Climate Change".

Because both Italian Dukes and Popes suddenly became extremely wealthy as a result of the new-found Warm Weather trading scenario, those prominent men could now afford to commission geniuses like Michelangelo, Donatello, Raphael, and the great Leonardo da Vinci to create fantastic works of art, and all of that fabulous cultural progress, naturally occurring, as a result of the wonderful benefits of "Renaissance Global Warming" following the colder "Dark Ages" period in World History.

And because the Earth was still even warmer in Europe in the early 1600s, a unique variety of maple trees could then grow in Northern Italy, thus allowing Antonio Stradivari to successfully manufacture the famous Stradivarius violins. If it weren't for Climate Change (that differentiated the cold Dark Ages from the warmer Renaissance Period), those special maple trees, along with the famous Stradivarius violins, would have never happened. Of course, that 1600s Global Warming was followed by the "Little Ice Age" in the early 1700s.

Just think about it for a moment! Global Warming took Europe out of the Dark Ages and caused the Renaissance; the Renaissance led to the Age of Exploration and Discovery (Columbus, Magellan, etc.); which led to the Age of Enlightenment (Voltaire, John Locke); which led to the Revolutionary War and Democracy Era (Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln); which led to the Industrial Revolution (Ford, Rockefeller, Edison); which then led to the current Age of Science and Technology (Bill Gates, computer chips, Jeff Bezos (Amazon.com), etc. Yes indeed; thank you Global Warming!

If Global Warming (Climate Change) did not get Europe out of the cold and miserable Dark Ages, right now we would probably still be wearing rags for clothes; living in primitive straw and stick huts, and riding around in donkey carts if we were rich enough to own one. Thank God for Global Warming!

Climate Change tyrannical adherents claim that CO-2 being emitted into the atmosphere is extremely dangerous, and is detrimentally causing Global Warming to occur. Any public-school 3rd grader learns that trees and plants breathe-in carbon-dioxide and give-off oxygen; whereas, humans and animals breathe-out carbon dioxide and breathe-in O-2, causing a true "symbiotic relationship" existing between plants and animals. So, with the excessive CO-2 that humans are emitting into the atmosphere, maybe now the Amazon Rain Forests can be better salvaged because the environmentalists all fear that those lush jungles are being shrunken and becoming lost to "EVIL MANKIND'S" atmospheric pollution.

And oh, yes, we keep hearing about the North Pole glaciers dramatically shrinking because of atmospheric CO-2, but we never seem to hear from the all-too-garrulous Ecology Crowd that the South Pole ice is readily and coincidentally expanding around Antarctica.

A principal factor in causing Climate Change is probably an astronomical phenomenon known as Precession of the Earth's Axis, or Precession of the Equinoxes. The last major Ice Age ended about 12,000 years ago, but every 26,000 or so years, the Earth's axis gradually shifts from 25 degrees on its right to 25 degrees on its left, thus changing an amazing 50 degrees on its axis back and forth every 26,000 years. If the recurring pattern is again correct, the Earth is now midway between Ice Ages. (See the Milan Planetarium Illustration on Google)
