NICK KOROLEV

Copyrighted Material

These historical fiction stories take the reader on a journey into the most tragic time in our history—the Civil War. Arranged along a rough timeline of the period, they cover a broad area of mood and events and range from a young man's escape from an outlaw gang in Missouri to join a North Carolina regiment back home, to the discovery of Lee's lost orders by a Union sergeant, to a boy too curious about war, to a young woman who has dressed like a man to join her brother in the war, to enemies who become friends over a fishing hole. A couple of the stories feature iconic leaders Stonewall Jackson and Colonel Joshua L. Chamberlain, and one is told by General Sheridan's horse, Rienzi, of the famous ride that turned the tide at Cedar Creek.

Flashback: Life After Murder by Nick Korolev.

Murderers Did Not Anticipate Revenge By A Reincarnated Victim.

Equine veterinary technician Walter Watson was working in a prestigious practice in Colts Neck, New Jersey when he makes a terrible discovery. His boss, famed equine surgeon Dr. John Hansen, is involved with a group of men committing a multimillion-dollar fraud killing racehorses in order to collect insurance money. Just before Walter can expose the scam, he is murdered. However, he is reincarnated as a thoroughbred racehorse colt.

A memory thrashes its way to the surface, torturing him, refusing to let him rest—the knowledge that he once was a man. He knows he must expose the crimes that haunt him as he enters training and racing in pursuit of men’s fortunes. He will not be alone in his quest. Merlin, a black barn cat who was once a homicide detective will see to that. He is also assisted by famous animal psychic Sally Andrews and her private investigator friend Chris Mackenzie.

Message From The Author: I'm originally from New Jersey and was raised in a boating family and had all kinds of pets. Both have greatly influenced my writing and art.

My first short story was published at the age of 14 in a national magazine "Popular Dogs". Since then, my work has branched out into writing stage and screenplays some of which have won awards: The Great Mudbug War, That's the Spirit: A Haunting Comedy, Riders of the North Wind, and The Swamp Dragon. During the same time, I also wrote and had traditionally published novels that include historical fictions: Silver Eagles, a Civil War novel about Ames, Chamberlain and the 20th Maine, The Swamp Dragon, a Civil War fantasy novel, Dark Waters, a maritime novel about the Lusitania disaster, a maritime historical Storm Warning, about the chase, capture, and trial of the only slaver ever hung for piracy, a political comedy, Ghost of a Chance. Most recent books include, The Cat Who Fell to Earth, a first contact science fiction, The 13th Child, a horror that is a different take on the Jersey Devil legend and Arizona Red Ghost, a Western novella based on a true story. All work is traditionally published by royalty publishers. All can be found on Barnes & Nobel, Amazon and from the publishers. Some of my short stories have appeared in anthologies in print and online.

I have done professional artwork since the age of 18. I work in the medias of oils, acrylics, pen and ink, colored pencil, and graphite pencil. Subject matter runs from wildlife paintings and pet portraits to illustration and cartoons. I have won many awards and had work exhibited in galleries including the Smithsonian. My last illustration work was children's book illustrations for Gini Graham Scott of Changemakers.

Presently I live in Fisher, WV. I teach in the local school district where students tell me I am their favorite teacher, and I am a naturalist in the summer at a state park. When teaching I can share my passions especially if my students get their work done on time. Every moment is shared by my two creative passions. I maintain a Facebook page. Nick Korolev Author/Artist is on LinkedIn where interested people can keep track of my creative ventures. I am available for freelance work and commissions in both venues.
