Nina's Salvation for Joey by Steven Prevosto

Fiction (Coming of Age)

In 1974 twenty-one-year-old Joey Maks' rock band imploded in the Midwest, and the love of his life abandoned him. Depressed and wanting to kill himself, he takes a bus to his Grandmother Nina's house, where he hopes to find his salvation.

Review by Brian Tabatha Robinson: 5.0 out of 5 Stars. Loved this story!! Reviewed in the United States on June 24, 2023. First time reading this author and wow! Such a sweet story about following God's lead and the healing He can do. Joey is down on his luck when his band breaks up and his girlfriend leaves. Joey goes back home to his grandma who is the one comfortable and secure spot he knows. Grandma is awesome, and Joey's love and respect for her helps him kick his addictions. And when he takes grandma to church, he is introduced to another way for him to play his music...and maybe a new love! Would love to see this book turn into a series. Would love to see how Joey grows.

The Defending Guns by Steven Prevosto

In 1878 Anthony Augustus Peters was not only skilled in using a gun, he was a rising star in New York City as a very popular Shakespearean actor. However, he had a death wish. And he would die nobly by defending people against violent outlaws populating the booming towns out West where he was taking his theatre company to perform for them.
